Secondary research happens to be the first of six market research methods. The other five are all different flavors of primary research. Secondary Market Research. Your job as a secondary researcher is to find existing data that can be applied to your specific project. It is possible that you might not be able to find secondary data that is suitable for your research needs. If that's the case, you'll need to conduct your own primary research; and that's where we'll find the other five market research methods. Selecting scientific procedures and research methods. A scientific procedure means a procedure through which a given task related to the research and reaching the research aim is successively implemented. A scientific procedure is based on certain methodology. Its content is supported by the methodology. Questioning determinism Determinism can be overcome by human interpretation. A certain system must be regarded as a guessed order within which people continuously argue while mutual communication about their intentions and expectations. Plans of qualitative research (research conception, basic research arrangement) case study document analysis biographical research ethnographic terrain research active and critical research evaluation. Research methods is a broad term. While methods of data collection and data analysis represent the core of research methods, you have to address a range... Research methods also depend on the type of research according to the purpose of the study. Specifically, according to their purpose, studies can be classified either as applied research or fundamental research. Applied research, also known as action research, aims to find solution for immediate and specific problem(s). Accordingly, findings of applied studies are valuable on practical levels and can be applied to address concrete problems.
